

When not entertaining, the kitchen is a practical gathering space for the family. While the husband prepares routine family dinners, the wife and children use the secondary island for homework or other casual activities.

