DISCERNING TASTE

To understand their client's aesthetic, the designers toured the homeowner's previous home in Birmingham. "It was a great way to understand what they like and the direction they wanted to go," LaVictor explains. It was also an opportunity for the designers to catalog the furniture to be incorporated into the new house. An ottoman was one of those items. "We reupholstered a number of things, but this blue ottoman aligned perfectly with the drapery, which was the starting point of the design for this room," LaVictor says.
