

The Sunroom is bright, airy, and thoughtfully appointed for a young family.

THE SUNROOM

With floor-to-ceiling windows, the living room was quickly dubbed “The Sunroom.” Yellen wanted the room to feel bright and offer multiple seating areas, each with a different view of the beautiful backyard. A daybed and drapery are upholstered in the lightest fabrics as they are the most decorative and touched the least, while workhorse pieces like the navy sectional sofa and off-white chairs are dressed in heavier, more durable fabrics for greater wear. When the designer was asked how white furniture could withstand two small children, she answers with two words: “performance fibers.” Yellen advises that this fabric is easy to clean and doesn’t require professional care for minor spills or sticky fingers.
